Points Of Interest

The Old Roane County Court House was built during the 1854 - 1855 time period using native lumber and bricks made on the site by slaves. The old courthouse is one of six antebellum courthouses remaining in Tennessee.

Fort Southwest Point 1797-1811 is the only fort in Tennessee being reconstructed on its original foundation. The completed sections of the fort include a barracks, a blockhouse and 250 feet of palisade walls.

Temperance Building completed shortly after the founding of Harriman. It was built to house the general offices of the East TN Land Company. Today it houses the Harriman City Council Chambers, city offices, and the Harriman Heritage Museum.

Southern R.R. Depot built in 1896, it was acquired by the Oliver Springs Historical Society, restored, and opened to the public as a Museum and Library. An old caboose and hose wagon have been added.

Wheat Community African-American Burial Ground- One of and perhaps the largest slave cemetery in East Tennessee it stands as a monument to the four million human beings who lived and died in bondage in the South, as well as a remainder of the rich contributions to our heritage made by the largely forgotten, often ignored descendants of Africans who literally built much of Roane County.

Secret City Scenic Excursion Train - Travel in 1940's era passenger cars pulled by a 1950's vintage locomotive through the Manhattan Project facility where research and development plunged the United States into the Atomic Age.
